Management Discussion of Fund Performance

Results of Operations

For the six-month period ended June 30, 2024, the NBI U.S. Bond Private Portfolio's Series F units returned -0.31% compared to -0.71% for the Fund's benchmark, the Bloomberg U.S. Aggregate Index (USD). Unlike the benchmark, the Fund's performance is calculated after fees and expenses. Please see the Past Performance section for the returns of all of the Fund's series, which may vary mainly because of fees and expenses.

Certain series of the Fund, as applicable, may make distributions at a rate determined by the manager. This rate may change from time to time. If the aggregate amount of distributions in such series exceeds the portion of net income and net realized capital gains allocated to such series, the excess will constitute a return of capital. The manager does not believe that the return of capital distributions made by such series of the Fund have a meaningful impact on the Fund's ability to implement its investment strategy or to fulfill its investment objective.

The Fund's net asset value rose by 5.22% over the period, from $101.45 million as at December 31, 2023 to $106.74 million as at June 30, 2024.

The first quarter of the year was marked by some recalibration in terms of rate cut expectation and strong credit sentiment due to stronger economic numbers. Following a strong rally late in 2023, the global bond market retraced some of its gain during the first quarter as 10-year US treasury yields move from 3.87% to 4.20%. Central Banks among developed economies continue to indicate that interest rates have reached their peak but remain prudent and want to avoid premature easing as the economy is stronger than anticipated. Inflation is still resilient due to the service component but heading in the right direction.

The second quarter of 2024 experienced some volatility on the rates side as employment and inflation showed sign of resiliency. Some weaker economic numbers such as leading indicators and retails counterbalanced the move in rates. US 10-year yield move from a low of 4.20% to a high of 4.73% to settle at 4.39%, up 0.16% on the quarter. In Europe, France's election sparked some credit spread widening.

The Federal Reserve decided to remain on the sideline and kept its monetary policy unchanged as inflation in the services component was still hovering at level considered too high. On the other side, the ECB decided to cut rates as well as the Bank of Canada and the Central Bank of Switzerland as inflationary pressure eased, and economic environment showed signs of softness. In Japan, the currency depreciation is challenging the Bank of Japan and might lead them to act in the near future. On the emerging market front, central banks in Brazil, Colombia, Chile, and Peru decided to cut rate while Mexico and South Africa remained on the sideline.

On the credit front, the market performed relatively well, and many corporate issuers came to market to issue bonds to benefit from the credit condition. Market expectation about the success of achieving of a soft landing is pushing credit spread tighter and at level not seen since 2021. In June, we saw some spread widening following weaker economic number, volatility coming from Europe, and expectation of monetary policy that will be tighter for longer.

In this context, the Fund outperformed the benchmark. Overall, the main generator of performance came from security selection and sector allocation.

Recent Developments

On the security selection front, the portfolio manager still expects the acquisition by Skydance Consortium of Paramount to happen in the second half. He expects the transaction to be credit positive considering the expected capital commitment to reduce debt/leverage, create synergies and target strong investment grade metrics going forward. Skydance Consortium is expected to strengthen Paramount's balance sheet while focusing on cash flow generation. He is overweight Paramount in the Fund.

The portfolio manager feels the global bond market offers a lot of opportunities, and the asset class is attractive considering higher rates globally. He expects economic softness in the coming quarter, and he prefers duration risk than credit risk at the moment. He also prefers to keep some dry powder to deploy when credit spread will be wider. Starting Q3, the Fund is well positioned to encounter various market environments considering its strong yield carry protection provided by an overall investment grade profile and a diversified source of income.

Past Performance

The performance of each series of the Fund is presented below and calculated as at December 31 of each year. It assumes that all distributions made in the periods shown were reinvested in additional securities and does not take into account sales, redemption charges, distributions, or optional charges that would have reduced returns. Past performance of a series of a Fund does not necessarily indicate how it will perform in the future.

Annual Returns

The bar charts indicate the performance for each the Fund's series in existence greater than one year during the years shown, and illustrate how the performance has changed from year to year. They show, in percentage terms, how much an investment made on January 1 (or made commencing from the start of the series) would have grown or decreased by December 31 of that year, in the case of the Annual management report of fund performance, or by June 30, in the case of the Interim management report of fund performance.

The management expense ratio includes, if necessary, the management expenses from its underlying funds, as described in Article 15.2 of Regulation 81-106.
- ⁽⁷⁾ The trading expense ratio represents total commissions and other portfolio transaction costs expressed as an annualized percentage of daily average net asset value during the accounting period. The trading expense ratio includes, if necessary, the trading expenses from its underlying funds, as described in Article 15.2 of Regulation 81-106.
- ⁽⁸⁾ The Fund's portfolio turnover rate indicates how actively the Fund portfolio's manager manages its portfolio investments. A portfolio turnover rate of 100% is equivalent to the Fund buying and selling all of the securities in its portfolio once in the course of the accounting period. The higher a Fund's portfolio turnover rate in an accounting period, the greater the trading costs payable by the Fund in the accounting period, and the greater the chance of an investor receiving taxable capital gains in the accounting period. There is not necessarily a relationship between a high turnover rate and the performance of a Fund.
